

ANGLO-FRENCH SUCCESSES CONTINUE TO BE STAGED ON ENTIRE BATTLE LINE

NEWS WHICH CREEPS THROUGH BRITISH CENSORSHIP IS INDICATIVE OF DECISIVE GERMAN REVERSES.

PRESS TO NORTHWARD

Allies Bayonets Advance Like Solid Fence Against Von Kluck's Army Which Is Said To Be Losing Rapidly.

Slight advances by both wings of the allied armies are indicated in an official statement issued by the French war office at 2:45 this afternoon. At the same time the general situation is described as unchanged.

The brief announcement from Paris affords the only light from officials thrown on the great struggle in northern France today. London and Berlin were still silent in the late afternoon and what unofficial reports reached this country by way of the capitals of belligerents contain little to indicate the course of the events on the different battlefields. Never before since the war began has the censorship been so severe.

The latest Berlin announcement made last night said that the Allies had been repulsed at Albert, 18 miles northeast of Amiens and that the German attack in Artois was progressing steadily though slowly.

The most recent word from the Belgian war office also given out last night, stated that the Belgians were successfully repulsing the attack on Antwerp.

Fighting in the far east has begun in earnest with an attack by the German warships on the land position of the Japanese who are besieging Tsing Tau in furtherance of their campaign against the district of Kiao Chow in China.

An official statement issued at Tokyo today says that Japanese siege guns sank a German torpedo boat destroyer while a Japanese mine sweeper was sunk off the harbor, and a Japanese supply ship was damaged. The somewhat vague Japanese statement gives the impression that the battle continues without definite result so far.

Nothing was made known of the progress of the fighting in the eastern theatre of war today. A news dispatch from Petrograd says that a German squadron bombarded Windau, a Russian seaport in the Baltic on September 24. The forts replied to the fire of the ship which after destroying the lighthouse, withdrew.

General Von Auenburg, commander of the first Austrian army, is reported ill with cholera at Vienna.

News dispatches from Switzerland states that Austria is confronted with a shortage of food supplies.

A correspondent at Paris referring to the events of yesterday says that the Germans continue a fierce attack on the Allies in the angle formed by the rivers Oise and Aisne in the direction of Tracy-Le-Mont.

Yesterday's statement by the French war office says that the Germans were repulsed at Tracy-Le-Mont. A French national committee is appealing for winter clothing for the troops declaring that a long campaign in winter weather is a possibility.

London, Oct. 1.—The screen of secrecy which has been maintained by the French war office since the last three weeks have been fashioning the rough outline of a new day almost unimpaired. It has, however, judging from indications in London, been pierced here and there with holes which permit some inkling of the events of the stage behind them.

From what can be deduced from these fragmentary glimpses there would appear to be justification in the opinion of British observers for the confidence, even seemingly inspired optimism on the part of the allies. This describes events as shaping themselves for a repetition of history as it was written on the river Marne when the allied forces sent the German back on their heels.

Von Kluck's Efforts Fail.

All the brilliantly skillful tactics employed by General Von Kluck, the commander of the German right wing, to counter or break through the fence of bayonets constantly reaching northward beyond his extreme right, have thus far failed.

These efforts, however, have by no means ceased and the German general staff, it is felt in London, probably will risk something elsewhere in order to reinforce this wing before the end of the chapter is written. Heretofore the reinforcements have been met by reinforcements in this crucial quarter of the battlefield.

The Germans nearly got through the allied wing near Albert, northeast of Amiens, but after two days of fierce struggle for the mastery they failed. These incessant assaults on the part of the Germans have, according to the allied commanders, whose reports are augmented by statements from independent sources, cost the assailant such appalling losses in men that even allowing for the reinforcements their ranks must have been materially weakened.

The announcement from France of the recreation of the post of marshal of France coming simultaneously with the report of General Joffre of the satisfactory conditions along the entire battle line has been hailed by the allies as particularly significant.

In the eastern field the German army is showing increased activity on the Baltic coast. It is in readiness to support German land forces if they succeed in forcing the passage of the river Mien.

Paris Announcement.

Paris, Oct. 1.—The following official communication was given out here this afternoon:

"There has been no modification in the general situation. We have made progress on our left to the north of the Somme and on our right to the southern Woëvre district."

Report from Berlin.

London, Oct. 1.—An official statement issued from German general headquarters under date of the evening of Sept. 30, is given in a dispatch to Reuters Telegram company from Berlin, via Amsterdam, says:

"Yesterday the forces advancing to the north and south of Albert (a town of France 18 miles northeast of Amiens) have been repulsed. The front battle line is without news, but strategy required them to continue steadily though slowly. At the outer forts on the Meuse the line is without change."

"The enemy advanced in Alsace and Lorraine in the central Vosges. This attack was energetically repulsed. The eastern theatre is without news."

During the strategic retreat of the allies southward from the Belgian frontier the French troops exacted from the Germans bloody retributions for the French defeat at Sedan forty-four years ago.

On this same battlefield, according to the Paris correspondent of Reuters, the Germans suffered one of the first defeats. They were led into a trap which cost them thousands of men. The French could have held the position indefinitely, but strategy required them to continue falling back with the remainder of the allies along the line. Here is the story of the second battle of Sedan as told by the correspondent:

"The French general ordered his troops to fall back across the river and take up positions on the opposite heights. The bridges were mined, but were left standing in order to deceive the Germans into thinking that the French were retreating hastily. It succeeded. The Germans advanced across the bridges in close formation. When several German regiments had crossed, the French blew up the bridges and the French started firing at the hundreds of German columns which retreated hastily to the river, only to find the bridges gone."

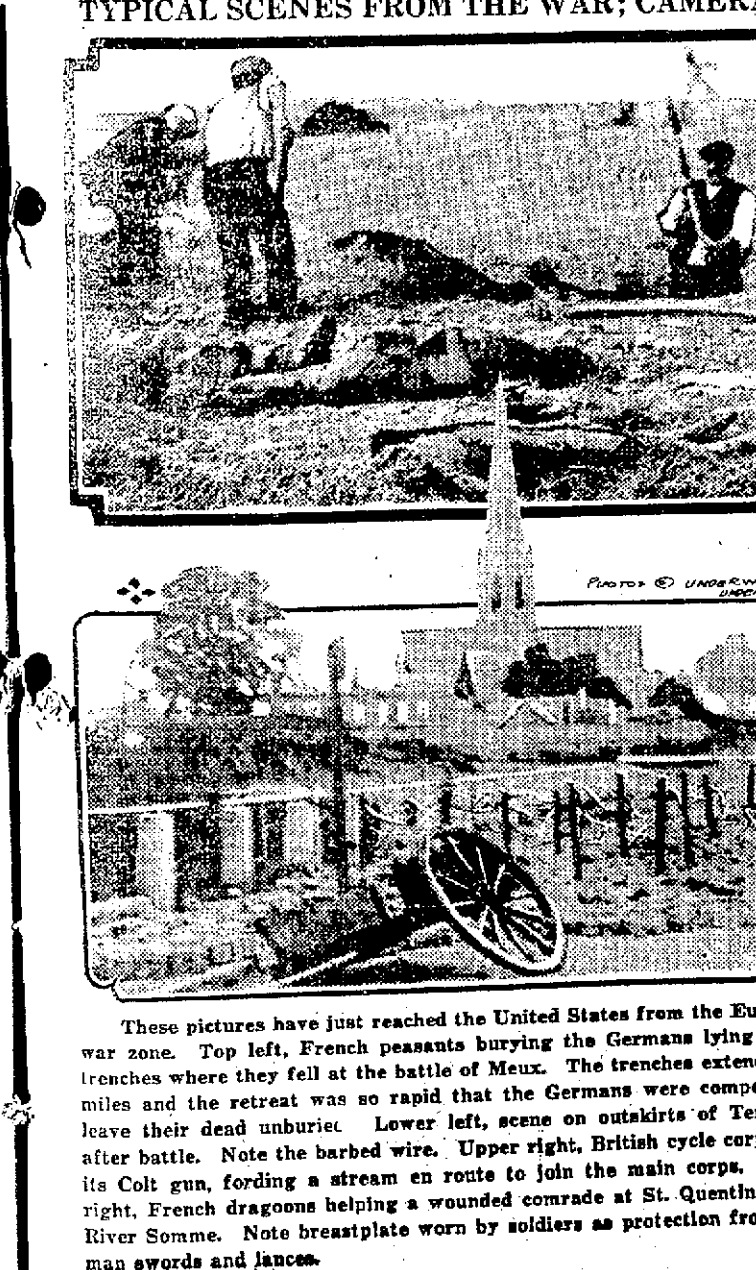

"The French regiment then advanced on foot and the merciless slaying continued until dusk. Many Germans threw down their arms and attempted to swim the river, but large numbers were drowned. When the sun came the French brought up searchlights and continued the work of carnage."

German Fight Desperately.

Paris, Oct. 1.—The Germans continue the fierce attack in the angle formed by the rivers Oise and Aisne, in the direction of Tracy-Le-Mont, just northeast of the forest of Argonne which has already been the scene of a success on the part of the allies. Here the French lines have thus far held solidly as the attempt made to break them has been futile. The cost has been singularly despatched, but the allies by daring counter maneuvers have checked the bold attempts of their adversaries.

The latest news from the front, while not giving sufficient details to satisfy Parisian eagerness for war news, is nevertheless regarded by them as favorable and they continue to wait with patience for some decisive result of the great battle.

TYPICAL SCENES FROM THE WAR; CAMERA SHOWS HORRORS OF EUROPEAN BATTLEFIELDS

These pictures have just reached the United States from the European war zone. Top left, French peasants burying the Germans lying in the trenches where they fell at the battle of Meux. The trenches extended for miles and the retreat was so rapid that the Germans were compelled to leave their dead unburied. Lower left, scene on outskirts of Termonde after battle. Note the barbed wire. Upper right, British cycle corps with its Colt gun, fording a stream en route to join the main corps. Lower right, French dragoons helping a wounded comrade at St. Quentin on the River Somme. Note breastplate worn by soldiers as protection from German swords and lances.

FIRE FROM GERMAN WARSHIPS CHECKS JAPANESE ADVANCE

Many Ships Lost in Naval Engagement at Kiao Chow—Jap Mine Sweepers Are Sunk.

Tokio, Japan, Oct. 1.—A severe engagement has been opened by the German warships which cannonaded the Japanese positions near Tsing Tau, east of the government of Kiao Chow the German leased territory in China, it was announced by the Japanese war office today. Two of the German warships were killed. German aeroplanes assisted the warships.

German war offices announced that an artillery duel at Tsing Tau continues. A German torpedo boat destroyer sank in the harbor yesterday. Apparently this ship was in action.

From other sources it is stated that the German destroyer was sunk by Japanese torpedoes.

Continuing this report says that after noon that a Japanese mine sweeper was blown up and sunk, three men killed and thirteen others wounded.

Another Japanese mine sweeper was damaged, one man being killed and six injured.

Another Japanese vessel, the supply ship Wakamiya Maru was damaged. One man on board was killed and six injured.

The name of the mine sweeper which went down was the Nijato Maru.

Tells of Fight.

Peking, China, Oct. 1.—A German report from Tsing Tau, the fortified position of the Kiao Chow territory, sent by carrier pigeons to Tsing Tau province tells of the fight which took place last Monday.

Continuing this report says that the Japanese losses were 1,700 killed and 500 wounded, the result of the fire from German warships coupled with the fire of machine guns on land. The German losses are described as small.

At the German legation in Peking, it was said today that the Germans caused the destruction early this week at Tsing Tau of six miles west of the Japanese position. They will cause other bridges to be dynamited if the Japanese continue their westward movement.

They will dynamite also all the government buildings at Tsing Tau, when a further defense of that place becomes impossible.

The Japanese legation today expressed the belief that the troops now attacking Tsing Tau would await the arrival of siege guns.

Talk Third Ticket; Also Adoption of Proposed Amendments and Future Legislation.

Milwaukee, Oct. 1.—An informal conference of twenty members of the progressive party met in Milwaukee today to discuss various matters, among other things the advisability of placing in the field an independent candidate for governor, but up to two o'clock nothing definite was decided upon.

According to Richard Lloyd Jones of Madison, one of the leaders in the progressive movement, the talk so far today had to do with the several proposed constitution amendments to be voted upon at the November election, the consensus of opinion being favorable to their adoption.

Much time was taken with the discussion of way and means to prevent the repealing of progressive legislation already enacted.

In the war revenue bill, a tax on owners of automobiles was proposed. The committee estimates that it would yield an annual revenue of $16,000,000. An owner of a 30 horse power car would pay $7.50 annually and a manufacturer selling such a machine would pay $20.00.

Senator Williams introduced an amendment to tax government employees, except the president, supreme court justices and congressmen, one-half of one per cent of their salaries to eliminate the tax of casualty damage and accident insurance. Another amendment would tax retail liquor dealers from $25 to $50 a year according to volume of the business.

SOUNDS WARNING ON PHILIPPINE PROBLEM

Leader Mann Asserts Giving Island Independence Would Be Giving Away Important Station.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Republican Leader Mann opposing Philippine independence bill in the house today, declared he favored "retaining supremacy on the fighting ground" of the future Pacific ocean. He declared the conflict commercial or otherwise, "that is inevitable in the far east or the far west will be across the Pacific ocean."

"If we let the Philippines go today without a string tied to them," he said, "they will belong to some other country in ten years, and if they come independent and keep so for years, they will be used against the United States eventually." Mr. Mann said he was against independence even with condition and that he was not sure he favored even a naval station there in the course of independence.

"Let China or Japan, or Germany, or Great Britain take them in that event," he said.

When translated the peasant found that the paper had ascribed their resistance of all German infantry attack."

"There has probably been sniping by the civilian population as the bodies of six peasants were found hanging to a tree in a Polish town a few days ago. LEGEND IS TOLD OF

THE INDIAN SUMMER

Ernest Oshkosh Tells How Evil Spirit His Tobacco in Years of Long Ago.

Where has Indian summer gone? Where did it come from and why the sappy atmosphere during that season? Here is the story, just as Ernest Oshkosh of the Indian reservation near Shawano was the first man sent to earth by the great spirit to prepare the way for the red man. After he had been here for some time, his grandmother told him of the spirit who was so stingy, mean and cranky that he would not let any one come anywhere near his wigwam. The wigwam was a high mountain, on the west side of which was a large lake. Mahanahpoos was filled with burning curiosity at his discovery to know what the bad spirit was like. One day while out hunting, he was delighted to find the secret. He said to himself, "Surely there can be no harm for me to enter, while I bode no ill to any one," and so without knocking or warning he walked into the forbidden room and saw seated at the west end of the old spirit, in the form of an old man, smoking a pipe of peace.

Mahanahpoos saw the worried look upon the old man's face, and although the old man tried to appear unconcerned, it was evident that he was disturbed, for this was the first time any one had ever forced by his actions, the secret of his exclusive domain. While the old man was endeavoring to disguise his chagrin, Mahanahpoos remembered that he was face to face with a bad spirit.

Tobacco hanging on walls. On the wall inside the wigwam, Mahanahpoos saw that there were some homestead tobacco hanging on the walls, and that the aroma from the old man's pipe was something delicious. He said:

"I did not come here to do mischief, but to pay my respect to you, and to buy some of your exquisite tobacco." In answer the old man told Mahanahpoos that the secret of his domain was to be kept, and that he should not be on the lookout for the messenger bearing his invitation. The feast would last from eight to twelve days, and again early in the spring, after the snow has disappeared.

He told how he always sent an invitation to all the underground beings and to all the large fowls of the air, at that time Mahanahpoos was invited, but until then he could have no tobacco. He was told that as soon as he saw the smoke coming up through the ground that he should be on the lookout for the messenger bearing his invitation. The feast would last from eight to twelve days, and again early in the spring, after the snow has disappeared.

While the old man was talking, Mahanahpoos remembered how hateful and stingy a deceiver his informant was, and resolved then and there that he would get even with the palaverer by stealing some of the high valued tobacco. Even while the old man was going on with his smooth talk, Mahanahpoos grabbed a bunch of tobacco and ran pell-mell out of the door being chased all over the continent. Mahanahpoos ran to the extreme edge of the world, and there stood still.

Spirit Goes Over Cliff. When the stingy old spirit came up to push him over the edge, Mahanahpoos quickly dodged to one side, and the spirit went over instead. But Mahanahpoos, thinking the punishment too severe, helped the old man back to earth again, and as punishment for his hateful stingy nature, his tobacco was scattered all over the continent for the benefit of the red man, who was to come.

As to the old man himself, he was changed into a huge grasshopper, and was condemned to go about for all time to come with a quid of his own tobacco in his mouth. Such is the legend of Indian summer as told by the Indian fathers to their children.

How to Tell Pure Water. Any water that is turbid or colored or that tastes or smells disagreeable is at least suspicious. If it appears opalescent when boiled it contains chalk or manganese. The tests for ammonia, nitrates, organic matter and microbes are too complex for any one but a chemist, but any good chemist knows how to make them.

Holland's Builest Man. On a sign over a barber's shop at Stierum, Holland: "Barent Wonters lends donkeys on hire like his father, kills pigs, smokes hams, and occupies himself with all kinds of swinish detail work; also shaves and cuts hair, except on Sundays."

LOCAL SHOPKEEPERS ENJOY TRADE TALKS

RETAILERS HOLD "GET-TOGETHER" BANQUET AS PRELUDE TO GRAND OPENINGS.

URGE STREET LIGHTS

Ornamental Lighting System for Business Streets Will be Agitated Through Commercial Club.

As a prelude to the opening and style show which will attract thousands to Janesville during the latter part of this week, the local retailers met last evening at a "get-together" banquet at the Grand Hotel. Merchants' problems and how they are met, trade prospects and local conditions were discussed by the men, who agreed that more actual cooperation among the retailers was one of the greatest needs of business men in Janesville.

Louis C. Levy, president of the retailers' division of the Commercial club, presided at the post-prandial program, which was entirely informal, and to which practically every man present contributed some idea or hearty indorsement of the efforts of the retailers' division to improve business conditions.

Commercial club, in starting off the evening's discussion, urged the point of co-operation and harmony among the retailers and the general prosperity and advancement of the whole community. "Let's get the idea that we are one big family," said Mr. Levy, "and that we are looking out for our neighbors as well as for our own business. What will help all the merchants of Janesville will help us individually. What we want is the 'get-together' spirit which is just as essential in the retail line as in manufacturing or any other branch of trade and industry. Let's make it a proposition of all for each and each for all."

There were a number of ideas advanced by the several speakers which were epitomized in character and prominent among them was the statement of Mr. Rehberg: "Serve our customers first." It was an expression which might have been adopted as a slogan by the merchants, and which seemed anxious to discover the wants of their patrons in order to supply them to the best of their ability. As Mr. Rehberg pointed out: "We depend upon our patrons for our bread and butter, and we will help our own cause by considering them first, placing all other matters secondary."

Joseph C. Connors deplored the lack of co-operation which was a condition too often existing among merchants. For that reason he believed there were so many failures and unsuccessful businesses in Janesville. "We depend upon our patrons for our bread and butter," he said, "and we will help our own cause by considering them first, placing all other matters secondary."

The credit bureau of the Commercial club, which has been organized so long ago, is a bureau of help which has been secured by using the bureau and urged all business men to assist in keeping the record up to date. Mr. Biles, H. L. McNamara, T. P. Burns and several others spoke of the credit bureau and its value as a result of the discussion a committee was appointed to make the bureau of credit a means of furthering the credit bureau idea, making it more effective and extending its advantages.

J. J. Mohr of the Janesville Electric company, gave an interesting and instructive talk on the value of lighting in stores, going somewhat into detail as to the correct systems to be used in certain cases. He pointed out that the problem he pointed out. Mr. Mohr's talk led to a discussion of the value of ornamental street lighting in the business district and as a result a resolution was presented for submission to the Commercial club, requesting a renewal of the action in favor of an improved system of street lighting for the Main and Milwaukee streets in the business section of the city.

Mr. Mohr told of the struggle for ornamental street lights in the city of Warsaw and how well and were all parties concerned, after the system had been installed. He felt confident that the same plan could be carried out in Janesville. Several of the merchants who had had experience in the effort to secure better down-town lighting in the past, spoke on the plan and were willing to take up the matter again. There was no question in the minds of those present that the newly lighted main street was a big advertisement to a city, indicating public spirit and enterprise, while it certainly means much to the merchants and business men. It was a benefit to the whole city as much as to any one section, it was contended, for the principal streets are the ones which are used most by everybody, whether they live on the outskirts or not. There was not a little enthusiasm in evidence over the lighting proposition and some advances in the matter will doubtless be made to the city council within a few days.

It was after ten-thirty when the meeting adjourned, so great was the interest displayed in the questions under discussion. Those who were present at the gathering were: J. L. Bostwick, T. P. Burns, H. L. McNamara, Louis C. Levy, E. C. Baumann, Amor Reberg, Joseph C. Connors, Harry W. McNamara, Frank Douglas, Fred L. Wilbur, George Patzinger, George H. Cullen, Frank W. Drake, William C. DAZZLING GARMENTS IN THE STYLE SHOW

Janesville Stores Show the Latest in Wearing Apparel; Openings Continue Through Saturday.

The last syllable of the last word in feminine habillment finds charming expression in the beautifully decorated windows of the Janesville stores. On occasion is the Janesville Merchants' second Fall Style Show and Opening. The event lasts for three days.

The last mandates from the throne of Dame Fashion are shown. "The thing" in suits and coats are tastefully displayed. Millinery, coiffure, and furs, the much smaller than last year. Luncheon and afternoon gowns, simple in design, in combinations of black satin, chamois lace, crepe de chine and infinitum. Afternoon gowns and dancing frocks in taffetas, charmeuse and chiffon and what not are on exhibition. Also may be seen high art evening gowns, exclusive, unique and unimitable, woven by the deft processes of art out of brocades, chiffons, cloth of gold and silver and in every shade and tint of the spectrum.

Men's Styles.

Not the least of the show is made up of the newest in men's wear, which may be termed as aggressive, of niceties the equal of which has never before been witnessed in clothes for men. This is the almost unanimous opinion of the clothing dealers, who have been gazing through these things. The graceful lines of contour, the elegance and fineness of the tailoring, in fact every element in the detail and construction of suits and overcoats for wear during the chilly blasts of the approaching fall and winter surpass the best efforts of former seasons in this direction.

Men's furnishings of every description are prominently displayed. Gloves, hosiery, shirts, pajamas, neckwear, hats, waistcoats may be viewed by those interested in the new styles.

Shoes for Everyone.

Boots for all the family; dainty, novel effects in women's shoes, among which cloth tops are given prominence; soft, comfortable, easy last, fashioned after the English style for men; sensible, broad-toed, well made shoes for the children; and expression in the shoe displays at the different stores.

TRY ASSAULT CASE BEFORE JURY TODAY

Action by Clayton Moore Against Three Men for Assault Being Tried in Municipal Court.

Before a six man jury the trial of the state vs. William Gower, S. W. Hoon and Fred J. Reihartz, Jr., was opened in the municipal court this morning to determine the guilt of the three men committed assault on Clayton E. Moore. This morning, after the attorneys, E. H. Ryan, prosecuting, City Attorney, H. B. Biles, H. L. McNamara, T. P. Burns and several others spoke of the credit bureau and its value as a result of the discussion a committee was appointed to make the bureau of credit a means of furthering the credit bureau idea, making it more effective and extending its advantages.

J. J. Mohr of the Janesville Electric company, gave an interesting and instructive talk on the value of lighting in stores, going somewhat into detail as to the correct systems to be used in certain cases. He pointed out that the problem he pointed out. Mr. Mohr's talk led to a discussion of the value of ornamental street lighting in the business district and as a result a resolution was presented for submission to the Commercial club, requesting a renewal of the action in favor of an improved system of street lighting for the Main and Milwaukee streets in the business section of the city.

Mr. Mohr told of the struggle for ornamental street lights in the city of Warsaw and how well and were all parties concerned, after the system had been installed. He felt confident that the same plan could be carried out in Janesville. Several of the merchants who had had experience in the effort to secure better down-town lighting in the past, spoke on the plan and were willing to take up the matter again. There was no question in the minds of those present that the newly lighted main street was a big advertisement to a city, indicating public spirit and enterprise, while it certainly means much to the merchants and business men. It was a benefit to the whole city as much as to any one section, it was contended, for the principal streets are the ones which are used most by everybody, whether they live on the outskirts or not. There was not a little enthusiasm in evidence over the lighting proposition and some advances in the matter will doubtless be made to the city council within a few days.

It was after ten-thirty when the meeting adjourned, so great was the interest displayed in the questions under discussion. Those who were present at the gathering were: J. L. Bostwick, T. P. Burns, H. L. McNamara, Louis C. Levy, E. C. Baumann, Amor Reberg, Joseph C. Connors, Harry W. McNamara, Frank Douglas, Fred L. Wilbur, George Patzinger, George H. Cullen, Frank W. Drake, William C. JOSEPH SIMMONS IS DEAD AT EDGERTON

Old Resident of Rock County Expires Wednesday Afternoon at Old Home.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, October 1.—On the afternoon of September 30, the day after his 81st birthday, Joseph Simmons, one of the old residents of Rock county, passed away at his home from earthly scenes. Increasing feebleness after a severe illness lasting for some time, and death came as a merciful release from his sufferings. Mr. Simmons was born September 29, 1829, near Helston, Cornwall, England, the son of a netting man, and came to America with his father, he left Pennsylvania bound for America. They took passage on a two-mast sailing vessel, which was six weeks upon the water. Landing in New York in July, 1849, they came by way of the Erie canal and the Great Lakes to Milwaukee, thence by wagon (returning wheat teams) to Janesville. For about six years he lived in this town, a small town, and vicinity, and by his honesty and faithfulness won the confidence and esteem of those for whom he worked. In 1856 he came to Milton township and remained there for the remainder of his life.

Mr. Simmons was of a reserved and unobtrusive disposition. He made friends slowly, but he gained the respect of those who knew him. He was a man of high character, upright, industrious and earnest, he sought to live at peace with his fellow-men. He held in esteem all that was noble and pure, and was appreciative of the highest qualities of his own and of others. He was a man of high character, upright, industrious and earnest, he sought to live at peace with his fellow-men. He held in esteem all that was noble and pure, and was appreciative of the highest qualities of his own and of others.

In 1867 he united with the Methodist Episcopal church, and was a member until his death. It was his wish that it be stated: "I am a soldier of the Cross; a follower of the Lamb."

In July of the Mr. Simmons was united in marriage to Miss Mary E. Dutton of Janesville, Wisconsin. Their eldest daughter, Ella Frances, died at the age of four years. Besides the wife, there were four sons, two daughters, George, Simmons and Ernest W. Simmons, and three daughters, F. Mae, Carrie L. and Ethel R. and one grandson.

Funeral services will be held from the home on Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Burial will be in the Milton Junction cemetery.

HENRY ALBERTS GIVEN SIX MONTHS' SENTENCE, THE MAXIMUM PENALTY

Henry Alberts was sentenced to six months under the commitment law by Municipal Judge Maxfield yesterday afternoon, following legal arguments made by District Attorney E. D. Davidson for the state and E. H. Ryan in defending Alberts. This sentence is the maximum term for the offense of "indecent exposure in a public place, on which charge Alberts was found guilty by jury Judge Maxfield overruled Attorney Ryan's arguments to suspend sentence because of a family warrant and because of the fact that there was no intention on the part of Alberts to commit an offense.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and there is no danger of permanent deafness, even after many years. Cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by the Eustachian Tube. Send for circular, free. F. J. CHERNEY, & CO., Toledo, Ohio. WILL BASEBALL WAR END DURING WINTER?

Various Reports Show Feds May be Taken Into Select Circle of "Big Show" Before Next Season.

(By Hal Sheridan.)
New York, Oct. 1.—Will this winter see the end of the baseball war? Many eyes are turned to the American and National leagues—says that it will.

Just how the windup of this conflict will be brought about, though, is a mooted question. Out of the many opinions advanced by the ones supposed to know, one fact stands out very prominently. That is that when the time for settlement comes—when the young Federal league enters into a peace parley with the Federals that will not be admitted to it. And their one demand that the end—will be the elimination of Gilmore from the spotlight.

To one in the bleachers this doesn't look very good. If the Federal league club owners stand for this, they will be showing much of a sportsmanlike spirit. And judging by past performances, they are liable to give Gilmore the gate if by so doing they can land in the select circle themselves.

To illustrate, we will recite the cause of one James Powers—the real cause of the Federal league. He has dropped out of sight completely, it seems, and still it was only a diligent work that he had done for the league, the league should have taken care of him in some manner.

Powers long had the "bug" of organization. A third major league, he said, was the only way to put the baseball war to rest. In 1912, when he tried to put the Cumbrian league over. That league was a very sorry spectacle while it lasted, but it served one purpose—it planted the germ of a third major league in the minds of several wealthy men.

The next year found Powers on the job again and by that time he had lined up a representative set of men as backers. At Indianapolis, in spring of 1913, Powers put through the organization of the Federal Baseball league, the United States. That was the birth of the Federal league of today.

This has all been recited just to show that Powers did for the Federal league. He told you what the Federal league did to Powers—lost him in the shuffle. And now we wonder why they do Jim Gilmore the same way if organized baseball insists upon it as one of its terms of settlement?

The Federal league will have to effect some kind of a settlement if it hopes to stay out of the bankruptcy courts. The main reason for this is that the league is carrying enough ball players—men and boys posing as such—to supply three or four leagues. Not having any nine Federal league, where it came players that it doesn't need in the regular playing season. It keeps on its payroll all youngsters who fall to make good or old timers who are slipping. The reason they don't dare to let any of these go is that if they do, it will be a scandal.

Each team in the Fed league has on its roster thirty to forty players. Twenty-five is the maximum carried by a club during its regular playing season. It can be seen easily that the Feders are totting an enormous expense account. The Feders have taken in the gate enough money to break even under ordinary conditions. But with the added expense of a vast number of players not needed, the league probably will have a good sized deficit as a whole.

Norris Williams, the new national tennis champ, has had a thrilling career. He was aboard the ill-fated Titanic with his father with his father who was lost and Williams himself only survived through a miracle. He had been raised in Europe and when but twelve years old showed remarkable cleverness at tennis. From that time he was given the tuition of some of the best tennis instructors and in 1912, when he first played in America, he was a sensation of the year. He is not yet twenty-four years old. His greatest fault is his inability to play steadily in his best form. Too often he becomes erratic. When at his best clip he is not to be beaten by any living player. In his recent match with McLoughlin, when he defeated the American champ, he gave one of the few demonstrations of his top form throughout the encounter.

Unpleasant rumors are about declaring that the Detroit Tigers have been losing purposely to the Boston Red Sox. That the latter team may busten along and grab the pennant, from the Athletics. There is no denying that the Red Sox have a fair chance year at the race and also it is commonly admitted that the Athletics are unpopular with other teams in the league. They have been winning pennants with two great ease and regularity. Most all of the other teams are members of the Players' Fraternity, while the Athletics are not.

Muggsy McGraw has real reason to be blue as the present season comes to a close. He has failed to cop his fourth successive pennant, a trick that he yearned to achieve, and his failure this year may be attributed to quite a bit of his poor judgment. He has indeed made several bad breaks in letting out players this past year. He let Dick Rudolph get away from him and he also passed up Red Ames. He traded Benis Becker, a regular hitter and he dropped Charley Hebert and let his infield suffer as a result. Had he been a little more considerate in dealing with him, he might also have still had Tille Shaffer.

Dick Rudolph, the Boston pitcher, is a wise little person, and he should last in the big show till he reaches hale old years. Though he is too great in pitching rat and is wise enough to never waste his energy. He pitches somewhat in Matty's style, he has everything there is in the way of pitching goods, but he wisely holds his stuff for pinches and relies mostly on his excellent control.

Gunboat Smith will fight Al Reichert for several rounds sometime next month in New York.

NEW GAME LAWS GO INTO EFFECT TODAY

Washington, Oct. 1.—Amendments to the department of agriculture's regulations for protection of migratory birds, published today, became effective today.

The effect of one of the changes is to permit on the Missouri and the upper waters of the Mississippi the shooting of all migratory game birds for which there is an open season from Oct. 1, 1914, to Jan. 1, 1915. After the latter date the prohibition will be in force again. Other amendments deal principally with the closed season for water fowl in the various localities.

The new regulations provide for a closed season in zone number 1 for all water fowl from Dec. 16 to Sept. 1 next following. Exceptions to the rule prescribe the open season as follows: In Massachusetts and Rhode Island, beginning Jan. 1 and Oct. 1; Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Idaho, Oregon and Washington, between Jan. 16 and Oct. 1; New Jersey, between Feb. 1 and Nov. 1; Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin, between Dec. 1 and Sept. 7.

For zone number 2 the closed season is between Jan. 16 and Oct. 1, with the following exceptions: Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, between Feb. 1 and Nov. 1; Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, between Feb. 1 and Nov. 26; Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma, between Feb. 1 and Sept. 15; Texas, Arizona and California, between Feb. 1 and Oct. 15.

Billy Doss, America's foremost minstrel monologist, and the Four Musical Kings, presenting a big musical novelty of refinement and excellence. Tom Powell's Minstrels will be seen at the Apollo Theater to night and for the balance of the week.

Do, uncle, please
And the story that Herbert Kelcey tells this little girl, as the story unfolds, would wring the heart of a stone. He tells her how he lost his beautiful sweetheart, Louise, played by Mr. Kelcey's co-star, Edna Shannon. Unbidden tears will spring to the eyes only to be brushed away with a smile, as the artists away the audience with their natural gift of acting. There are many sensational, death-defying scenes embodied in the production. The audience are taken to many strange lands including the Arabian desert, a Turkish harem, in gas Paris with its glittering cabarets, then among the Samoilians, who are a trifle.

HELPS ATHLETICS KEEP IN THE LEAD

Amos Strunk.

Amos Strunk is one of Philadelphia's regular outfielders, with center as his usual spot. He possesses a world of speed, covers acres of territory, and hits around 275. He is only a youngster, but is a clever base runner and cuts off runs at the plate about as often as the next one.

Last season Strunk batted in 93 games for the Athletics, was at bat 292 times, scored 20 runs, of which 21 were earned, and made 89 hits for a total of 124 bases, including 11 doubles and 12 triples. He had 18 sacrifice hits, 14 stolen bases, was given his base on balls 30 times and struck out 22 times, finishing the season with a percentage of .305. In fielding he worked in 82 games, had 171 putouts, eight assists and seven errors, for an average of .962.

During the world series Strunk was in every game and his 13 putouts were made without the semblance of an error. At bat in last year's big series he had 17 chances, scored three runs and made two hits and one sacrifice, for an average of .118.

BASEBALL PLAYERS ARE CULTURED TODAY COMPARED TO THOSE OF YORE; FIFTEEN YEARS AGO THE GAME WAS ROWDY

A great change has taken place in the character and deportment of the average ball player in the past fifteen or twenty years. The birth of the American league and its efforts to suppress rowdism is said to have been largely the cause of ball players' reformation. Fights and fistfuffs were popular features of the game twenty years ago, but of late years they have all but disappeared.

Clearing the Throat.

Hoarseness caused by irritation of the throat may be cured by gargling with cold salt and water. For severe hoarseness inhale the steam of hot milk in which figs have been boiled. Singers and public speakers should eat baked apples for clearing the throat; is also said that swallowing the yolk of an uncooked egg is good.

Psychological Fire.

My aunt told me to go tell the maid to make a fire in the kitchen stove, as we had no fire in the other part of the house. I did, and a few moments later went to the kitchen. Holding my hands over the stove, I said, "My, how nice and warm it is! It's heating up already." The maid lifted the stove lid and said, "I haven't made the fire yet."—Chicago Tribune.

THE GOOD JUDGE'S CLIENT IS VERY MUCH ALIVE

GET the taste of the richest tobacco grown. "Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew that you hear men boosting to their friends. Sappy, full-bodied tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough. You'll be glad, too, that you've found "Right-Cut"—and to pass the word along to men that you know.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. The tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and fillings. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut". One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

whether it really reduced the prices to the small consumer to the advantage of the large water user, the court has issued the injunction so that it can not be tried and we must be content. Meanwhile the various entanglements which have arisen relative to actually taking over the Janesville Water company by the city will continue to be heard before the railroad commission and we may hope for a settlement soon.

THE JOKER.

Here is another of the clever ultra progressive plans to further their own individual interests at the expense of the taxpayers by voting to raise the salaries of the legislators from five hundred dollars a session, to six hundred dollars a year. Neat, is it not? Clever idea to obtain a raise of some seven hundred dollars per session under the guise of merely a hundred dollar a year raise. The average voter will not stop to think that the legislature meets only once in two years and that the six hundred a year is merely another drain on the already over-taxed state treasury. Vote "no" on this amendment which reads as follows:

(It Res. No. 8. A.)
To amend section 21, of article IV, of the constitution, relating to compensation of members of the legislature.

Whereas, At the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1911, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

"Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That section 21, of article IV, of the constitution, be amended to read:

"Section 21. Each member of the legislature shall receive for his services the sum of six hundred dollars per annum, and two cents for every mile he shall travel in going to and returning from the place of meeting of the legislature on the most usual route. In case of an extra session of the legislature, no additional compensation shall be allowed to any member thereof, either directly or indirectly, except for mileage, to be computed at the same rate as for a regular session. No newspapers, postage, or other perquisites, except the salary and mileage above provided, shall be received from the state by any member of the legislature for his services or in any other manner as such member," now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the assembly, the senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be, and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

Note. (If adopted, this amendment will increase the compensation of members of the legislature from $500 for each regular session to $600 per annum, and to reduce their traveling allowance from ten cents a mile to two cents a mile.)

THE PRAYER FOR PEACE.
President Wilson has set aside October 4th, next Sunday, as a national day for prayer for a general peace. It is as timely as his offer to the warring European nations to stay their hands, lay down their arms and settle their differences through the medium of a court of arbitration. There have been few pulpits in the past two months which have not resounded with similar prayers, but the fact that the president of this great nation, this melting pot of the world, with its citizenship of Germans and Slavs, English and Italian, Turks and Servians, Greeks and Bulgarians, Russians and Japanese and Chinese, has set aside one day for a general prayer can not but have its effect upon the European people who are waging this useless and senseless warfare against modern custom and usage. Protestants and Catholics will unite in the expression of their earnest desire that the nations of the world be at peace.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF IT?
Colonel Roosevelt proposes to come back to Illinois, about the middle of October, and enlist in a campaign against "Uncle Joe" Cannon. He says that he hopes to secure enough Progressive votes to insure the election of the democratic candidate O'Hara. That's a fine sense of appreciation for the work of the republican party, to which he owes everything in the way of political preferment. The campaign ought to be "Uncle Joe" a lot of good, as it doubtless will. Fair-minded people will not endorse that sort of nonsense.

Not content with the result of the primary of their own creation, with the result of the Mary Ann law, which reacted against them, the ultra-progressives of the republican party are planning to place a third ticket in the field for the fall campaign. This is being considered at the dictation of Robert M. La Follette who sees his chance tumbling to pieces, his house built upon the sand crumbling, and wishes to save what he can from the wreckage. The law was all right when it worked for the factionalists, but all wrong when it worked against them.

Eleven pages of advertising in the primary election pamphlet at $100 a page, represents the receipts of an advertising medium, which takes the cake for extravagance. 450,000 of these pamphlets were printed, at a cost of not less than $10,000 and sent out by mail. The postage was $4,500 to say nothing about the expense of handling, and yet some people think that there is nothing in the state to reform. This is only one feature of the primary law, and one of the smallest items of expense.

Do not be blinded by any thought that a republican victory is certain this fall, but plan to vote the entire republican ticket from top to bottom. Particularly as regards the assembly candidates. If Mr. Philip is to be the governor he wants a good strong legislature behind him, and Whitte and Winegar are two men Rock county can send to Madison to aid him.

The war still continues despite the efforts of the Russians and allies to end it by defeating the German hosts on the borderland of France. Evidently the fighting is far from finished yet.

SHIPPING TAG NOVELTY

One Which Cannot Very Well Get Separated From the Package.

The shipping tag with which we are all familiar has stood the test of time very well, and there has been but little improvement in its shape or construction from time to time, the principal object being generally to make it stronger, so as to avoid the possibility of its becoming separated from the package to which it has been attached. This has been the weak point of the old tag, tied with a wire or string to the cord or wrapper of a parcel, it would frequently become entangled with the wrapping of another package or wedged under it, and then when the effort is made to move one or the other the tag becomes divorced beyond the possibility of reunion. The new shipping tag when it has once been applied to the package becomes an integral part of it. It has four reinforced holes into which the wrapping twine is interlaced, so that there is little possibility of separation.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD BIG HOME GATHERING

MEMBERS OF CHURCH AND CONGREGATION ENJOY HARVEST SUPPER AND PROGRAM.

FOUR HUNDRED ATTEND

Committees in Charge Provide Delightful Banquet For Reunion Meeting—Elaborate Decorations.

Last evening the membership and the congregation of the First Presbyterian church gathered at the church building for a harvest home gathering. A most splendid spirit of fellowship was manifested. Folks who had not greeted each other since the summer vacation eagerly sought one another and in groups pleasantly enjoyed the evening.

Promptly at 6:30 the officers of the church formed in line to act as a reception committee. The people then passing shook hands with each officer and were ushered into the dining room where they were presented with a most excellent dinner. The committee in charge of the dinner was Mrs. Bey Jackson, chairman; Miss Lizzie Patterson, Mrs. Mary Horn, Mrs. Cary, Miss Mabel Best, Mrs. S. M. Smith, and Mrs. Athol. The boys and girls of the Sunday school acted as waiters. The officers and teachers of the Sunday school assisted.

The dining room was most tastefully and beautifully decorated. In the windows were pumpkins, squash, carrots, beets and the various vegetables and yields of the fields. The dining room was decorated with Mrs. Archie Reid, chairman. Miss Elma Scofield, Mrs. Will Jones, Mrs. Edward Duthie, Miss Louise Hanson, Mrs. George Rummell and Mrs. Simpson. Four hundred were provided with dinner.

After the dinner the membership of the church and congregation were pleasantly entertained by a program provided by the entertainment committee composed of Mrs. Mabel Best, chairman; Mrs. Allen P. Lovejoy and Mrs. Sanford Soverhill. The following was the program rendered:

The pastor, Rev. George Edwin Parise, made a few pleasant and happy remarks pertaining to the work of the church and the need of consecration for the work of the fall, winter and spring.

"Meditation" (from Thoms), Misses Wilma and Laila Soverhill Solo—"Because I Love You Dear," Duet—"O Lovely Night," Mrs. McCulloch, Mr. School, Violin Solo—"Carnegie,"

Miss Wilma Soverhill, Greetings from Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Athol, read by Judith McCulloch.

Solo—"Where Blossoms Grow," At the conclusion of the program Mr. Lewis displayed pictures of the Panama Canal by the aid of the reflectoscope.

The Sabbath school room was a host of beauty. Vines and leaves were tastefully arranged about the wainscoting, while gathered about the various corners shocks of corn were located. Tucked in the corners of the room were golden pumpkins and the red of tomatoes and peppers, and the green of cabbage. Pretty flowers with their bright fall colorings were in abundance in every room of the church.

The following committee had charge of the general arrangements: Mrs. Ben Cary, Miss Elma Scofield, Mrs. O. W. Athol, Mrs. P. H. Korst, Miss Mabel Best, Miss L. J. Soverhill, Miss Margaret McCulloch, Mrs. Archie Reid, Mrs. Sam Smith and Miss Louise Hanson.

Next Sabbath is a special rally day of the Sunday school and the church.

TRAIN HITS WAGON; MAN IS BADLY HURT

Frank Hubka of Shopiere Injured This Morning When Struck at Grade Crossing.

E. C. Smith on his farm in the town of La Prairie, had his left hip broken and sustained severe scalp wounds, when a Northwestern passenger train struck his wagon at a grade crossing just south of the Shopiere depot. Hubka had brought a load of hay to the village this morning and was returning home when the accident occurred. He failed to see the approaching train which hit the wagon and threw Hubka 125 feet over the cattle guard fence and down a big embankment. At the moment he was some 500 feet from the crossing. It is considered miraculous that he escaped without being killed. He was taken by Dr. Eaton of Shopiere to the Beloit hospital. Hubka has a wife and four children.

Neither of the horses were injured in the collision. They started to run at breakneck speed as soon as the wagon was struck and dashed into a group of section men, who were building a fence a short distance away. They were stopped when they crashed into a fence post. The workmen made a fast race for places of safety and escaped being run over.

Judge Karel left on the 12:35 train for Black River Falls where he was scheduled to deliver an address today.

IDEALS OF YOUTH.

It is the ideals of youth that determine the course of mankind. Given the ideals which the young men of a country cherish, and the history of that country for the next thirty years, until a new generation of young men with new ideals arises, can be fairly correctly foreseen.

PRACTICAL "JOKERS" ARE GIVEN WARNING

Chief of Police Will Make Arrests if More Complaints Are Received Over Working of "Joke."

Chief of Police Champion declared this morning that he would stop the people in the residential district at all hours of the night in executing a "practical joke" that ingenious youths of the high school originated and carried out for some time during the summer months.

The plan calls for two youths to go to an empty house on a supposed visit. Another member of the "jokers" guised as an irate father gives chase to the two callers threatening dire violence to them. Invariably the person on whom the "joke" is intended takes to his heels and stops the amusement to the watchers secluded in the neighborhood. For some time Chief of Police Champion paid no attention to the high school boys, but complaints were received when the old youths and men took up the joke and in several cases an entire neighborhood was routed from their sleep by the episode. About a month ago a young man was arrested just before midnight and on being taken to the station explained to the officers that a man had threatened him with a revolver. Investigation revealed the "joke" and the police were instructed to break up the gangs from operating the scheme.

A week ago, at a darkened house on South High street, two young men who were in the house to play the part of the father, were surprised in their work by Chief Champion and instead of their chasing the lightened savior, they were the objects of their play. The police chief, who was in the Fourth ward and spotted their play, threatened the leaders of the "joke" with arrest if they did not stop. Warrants will be issued if the trouble is continued, declared Chief Champion this morning.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE IDEAL WOMAN.

WE were discussing a woman of the old school the other day. She is a dear, sweet woman, but she has scarcely an interest beyond keeping her home in good order, her table well supplied and her children properly looked after in a physical way.

In the papers she reads only the woman's pages; in the magazines only the love stories. The other day a guest asked her opinion of the latter and she didn't know there was any such thing.

When her husband, her grown up children and their guests talk over public affairs and the larger interests of life, at her table, as they frequently do, she seldom listens. There is a remote look on her face; she is wondering if the vegetables are done properly.

She is inwardly disturbed because the maid "burned up two pieces of toast"; she is wondering if there will be enough fish left to cream for tomorrow's breakfast. Again and again she interrupts in the midst of some subject in which the speaker is intensely interested to ask if he will have this or that.

Now is this the ideal attitude for a woman to take or is it not?

I claim that it isn't. My opponent in the discussion insists that it is. Woman's first interest is the home, he says. It is her business to make the home pleasant and comfortable. Now I admit that.

Women who have been distinguished for their ability in various lines have often been just as successful home makers as the women who never had a thought beyond housekeeping.

Hannah More and Harriet Martineau both made nearly $200,000 by their pens at a time when that meant much more than it does today. Yet they were excellent housekeepers.

Marion Harland has made her fortune by her pen. Yet, according to one of her biographers she is "a perfect housewife."

Elizabeth Carter was the best Greek scholar in England in Dr. Johnson's time. He wrote of her, "My old friend, Mrs. Carter, could make a pudding as well as translate Epictetus, and work a handkerchief as well as compose a poem."

Of our own beloved Kate Douglas Wiggin her sister writes, "My sister was certainly a capable little person at a tender age, concocting delectable milk toast, making toothsome buckwheats and generally acting as a very good parent's assistant."

A man's business is to support the home just as a woman's is to manage it. Yet when a man is so wrapped up in the business of money making that he has no thought for anything else we do not call him the ideal man. Is the woman who lets her end of the business crowd every other interest out of her life any more ideal?

thing was wrong, but she concluded to do as she pleased. She knew that Peggy would feel reticent about talking, and that if the trouble were really serious, Peggy would come to her unasked. When she found Peggy all alone in a big chair one morning, wiping tears from her eyes and trying to control a trembling under lip, she could hardly deny the mother love that prompted inquiries, but she decided to wait.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Is not marriage an open question, when it is alleged, from the beginning of the world, that such as are in the institution wish to get out of it, and as are out wish to get in—Montaigne.

DISHES FOR THE DAY.

When meat seems to pull on the appetite try the following:

Melt three tablespoons of butter in a hot saucepan, add a chopped onion and half a sour apple cut fine, add three tablespoons of flour and cook until brown. Add a pint of milk and a cupful of hot water which has been used to rinse the baking pan in which the nut loaf below was baked. Garnish the loaf with orange slices and serve this sauce in a separate dish.

Nut Loaf.—Crumble the inside of a loaf of bread, then dry slowly in a warm oven without browning. To three pints of crumbs measured before drying add a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful each of minced parsley and dried sage, half a teaspoonful of pepper, a dash of cayenne, a sprinkling of summer savory and two cupfuls of finely cut celery with one sour apple cut in bits. Melt a third of a pound of butter and fry in it for five minutes one onion chopped fine. Pour this over the other ingredients and mix thoroughly. Beat three eggs, add a pint of milk and pour over the mixture. Add one cupful each of pecans, filberts and brazil nuts ground fine. Reserve one tablespoonful of the nuts to put into the sauce given above. Shape in a loaf, place in a buttered pan and bake one hour and a half in a slow oven, basting often with butter and hot water.

Rabbit Sandwiches.—Grate a half pound of good cheese, season with cayenne and salt, add a well-beaten egg and half a cupful of cream. Stir over hot water until the cheese is melted, then set aside to cool. Spread brown bread with butter, then with the cheese mixture and put together and serve.

Date and Nut Salad.—Prepare the white inside leaves of head lettuce and cover with seeded dates, cut in strips, serve with French dressing.

Lemon Soup.—Make a strong, rich, hot lemonade, thicken with arrowroot to a rich consistency and serve cold in cups with a bit of candied orange peel for a garnish. Fill cream puff shells with ice cream and serve for dessert. It does away with serving cake and is quite a pleasing change.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Cream will not whip well unless it is at least thirty-six hours old and very cold.

When straining soup set a coarse strainer inside the finer one. In this way the finer strainer will not become clogged with pieces of meat and broken bones.

To remove egg stains from silverware rub the silver with a little fine salt or wash in water in which the potatoes have been boiled.

When your paint brushes have become stiff with dried paint, they can be easily cleaned in hot vinegar.

THE TABLE.

Pear Soup.—Take five pears and four apples, peel, cut in quarters, and cover with water, put on to boil at low heat. Strain one-half cup of flour, one egg and one-half cup of sugar for dumplings. Put in boiling soup by spoon, but let boil about five minutes. Sweeten to taste. If soup is too thick, add a little warm milk.

Egg Baskets.—Boil eggs, remove shells, cut in halves and take out yolk. Trim each one on the bottom so it will stand upright. Toast slices of bread, scoop out two holes in toast, fill with mixture made of egg yolks, one cup chopped meat, a little minced parsley or green pepper, and salt and pepper. Turn over in a cream sauce and set in hot oven for a few minutes.

Potato Friedcakes.—Use nutmeg and cinnamon for flavoring. Take six medium-sized potatoes, mashed and seasoned, two cups sugar, three eggs, one cup milk, butter size of egg, salt, five teaspoons baking powder, one cup flour, mix together, then knead more flour into mixture on board; roll and fry. This is large recipe.

Eggless Friedcakes.—One cup light brown sugar. Put two tablespoons sweet cream in a teacup and fill with sweet milk, add a little salt, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons cream of tartar, one teaspoon vanilla and a little nutmeg.

Mother's Molasses Cake.—One cup sugar, two tablespoons molasses, one egg, two tablespoons cinnamon, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half cup flour, mix together, then knead more flour into mixture on board; roll and fry. This is large recipe.

Dark Cookie Recipe. (to be stirred up the night before baking).—One cup baking molasses, one cup brown sugar, one egg, one cup large mix together good, and one cup sweet milk, one teaspoon ginger, four small teaspoons soda. Don't roll too thin for cookies, and don't bake too long. Dressing on just before putting in oven. One egg, one teaspoon sugar, four teaspoons sweet milk. This recipe is fine.

Apricot Dainty.—One cup dried apricots, one-third cup powdered sugar, whites of three eggs. Soak and cook apricots until very soft. Drain off moisture. Press apricots through coarse strainer or colander and add sugar. Beat whites of eggs until very stiff and gradually add apricots and sugar mixture. Chill and serve with custard sauce. Dried prunes may be substituted for apricots, using less sugar and adding a little lemon juice.)

Peach and Orange Conserve.—One dozen peaches are used for the making of this conserve, and one-half dozen oranges. Wash oranges well, then grate rind of oranges, peel them and slice pulp of oranges into a granite dish. Then peel and cut up peaches, mixing all together. Add three pounds sugar, three-fourths cup syrup, one pint water. Cook all together until clear and thick. About fifteen minutes before removing from fire add half pound blanched almonds finely chopped. This quantity will fill ten small glasses.

CROWN SEAL WITH OPENER

A New Feature Recently Added to Familiar Substitute for the Cork.

One of the greatest little patents ever conceived is the tin cap for bottles as a substitute for the cork, which has reaped great profits for the inventor and the interested with him in its development. The simplicity of the idea and its effective operation and the wide field offered for its use were great factors making it the great success that it has experienced. It fills its mission so perfectly that as a seal, it left nothing to be desired. The only weak point about it is proved to be the fact that it was necessary to have some special device with which to open the bottles sealed in this manner. These tin seals have been in use many years and it is only recently that an improvement has been made which removed the objection noted above. The cap shown herewith is the invention of two Philadelphia men and it will be seen that the seal carries its own opener. It consists of a piece of metal which is slipped between the wafer of cork which constitutes a part of the seal and the metal crown with an end extending from under the lip and resting close to the bottle. When it is desired to remove the crown seal this tiny extension is raised with the result that the whole cap is dislodged and access to the contents is afforded.

SEEDLESS RASPBERRY IS FAKE, SAYS INSPECTOR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Oct. 1.—The seedless raspberry is a fake, according to Prof. J. G. Sanders, nursery inspector for the state university. The professor's statement was issued after complaints reached him from the southern part of the state that alleged nurserymen were offering seedless raspberries for sale. It was said a Kenosha man had been led into making purchases.

Angel Food and Sunshine Cake.—Whites of six eggs, three-quarters cup granulated sugar, one cup flour, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half teaspoon cream tartar. Put cream tartar in flour and sift six times; sift sugar twice. Put a pinch of salt with the whites of eggs and beat very stiff; add sugar to whipped whites by placing it on platter and gradually heap it from platter and flour the same way and lastly the flavoring. Do not stop beating after the mixing is begun; keep it light.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please give me a recipe for elderberry wine; also tell me how to make sunshine cake.

THANK YOU.

Elderberry Wine.—One gallon of ripe elderberries and one quart of daisies or roses for every two gallons of wine to be made. Boil the elderberries in about half the quantity of water till they burst, breaking them frequently with a stick. Strain the liquor and return it to the kettle. To produce eighteen gallons of wine, twenty gallons of this liquor are required, and for whatever quantity the liquor falls short of this water must be added to make it up. Boil this along with fifty-six pounds of sugar for half an hour. Ferment in usual manner when sufficiently cooled, and then put into cask. Put in a muslin bag a pound of raisins and six ounces of hops; suspend the bag with the spice in the cask by a string not long enough to let it touch the bottom; let the liquor work in the cask for a fortnight, and then, in the usual way. The wine will be fit to use in two months, and is not improved by keeping, like many other wines. Elderberries alone may be used.

What's My Thought Like?—One member of the party says, "What's my thought like?" Each answers the first thing that enters his head, as machine, sunset, rain etc. The leader then tells what his thought really is and they must say why it is like that. If the thought was a person he is like a machine because he does so much work; like a sunset because it goes so soon, etc.

Yes and No.—The point lies in answering every question without saying yes or no.

Simply dry them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) When olive oil is taken internally to get fat, how much and how often should it be taken?

(2) Is it possible to make rosebuds of dry petals?

(1) One tablespoon of olive oil three times a day would be sufficient. The amount made in salad would have a more beneficial result because it would be more enjoyable.

(2) Rose leaves for beads must be put through a meat grinder while fresh in order to make beads. The dry petals are good for pillow cushions or aschet bags.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

If you have any bare space in your home that you would wish to be filled with a longed-for piece of furniture, do not give up the idea of having it on account of the cost. That is not until you have studied up a wee bit on box furniture and how to make it. A house can almost be furnished with this simple, yet very effective furniture and when you count the cost, you abandon yourself to the joys of new desks, stands, racks and pieces of every description, for your ability to make a thing is based on your ingenuity and willingness to work.

A sectional bookcase can be fashioned from the boxes of the same size, set one upon the other and stained or painted to shade you desire. If you cannot get the boxes identical in size, procure a box that will admit of two shelves being nailed in at uniform distance. Boxes of this lumber are most satisfactory for this purpose as they have a decidedly natter appearance when completed.

A box to hold the children's toys, while it might not correctly be listed as an article of furniture, is necessary a thing to possess that one is amply repaid for the short time spent in preparing it. If desired this box can be partitioned off into compartments lined on padded and castors put under it. This last bit of work is essentially a man's work, so unless you have the aid of a knight of the tools, you had best omit the castors.

A box of this kind is really worth more in a home than if you appear on the surface, as it teaches a child to be responsible for his personal belongings and gives him the desire to keep his toys in order while not in use.

Such a box isn't a bit in the way of your growing girl or boy's room and helps to keep the room in order and to know where many of their belongings are. One wise mother has a cozy corner made of boxes in her boy's room, that answers the purpose of a "catch all" and saves the room from looking as if a cyclone struck it daily. If her daughter's room this same idea is carried out with the addition of a wardrobe box to hold all extra clothes. All these boxes were fashioned at home, are not expensive, and add much to the general appearance and tidiness of the rooms.

A box with one or two shelves in it, given a coat of paint and nailed together, will give one a cabinet of the older style, and give one a cabinet without the modern conveniences of the "Hoosier" without the expense. Another box, made after the plan of a washstand, in the bathroom will make an ideal place for the children's toothbrushes, paste and many little toilet articles that needs be left in reach of childish hands. Of course it is an historical fact that every home has not a bath room. If you have one, not yet—this box near your kitchen sink and it will save you time and temper when the clock fairly races over the hour of nine—the way clocks have a mean way of doing, every school morning in the week. These suggestions are for people who are desirous of having more convenient, but who think they lack the cash. They are so simply fashioned that a woman or child can easily construct them and if you wish something more elaborate in box furniture, journey to your library and procure a book dealing with this question.

Owe "Sandwich Man" to Dickens.

The "sandwich man," whom many correspondents are trying to trace to birth, existed long before the '40s. And it seems highly probable that Charles Dickens invented his nickname, for in one of his "Sketches by Boz," written about 1836, he remarks: "So he stopped the unstamped advertisement—an animated sandwich composed of a boy between two boards."

The Awakening of Peggy

LXXXVI.
The Fear That Gossip May Have Injured Her Makes a Heavy Load for Peggy.

The more Peggy thought of Patty Smith's gossip about her, the more humiliated she felt. She hated to have her name linked with Parker Condy's in such an unpleasant way, but she felt that she could not afford to take any notice. If she were to show her friends that the gossip annoyed her, they would attach more importance to it.

What Condy might think if he reported reached him, gave Peggy something additional to think about. Certainly he would not be very favorably impressed with the story that Peggy was throwing herself at his head. Peggy knew that she had done nothing unbecomingly, and she felt sure that Condy held a similar view. But what would he think of unfriendly gossip?

Peggy wished that he would call, so that her uncertainty as to his position, at least, might be ended. If he seemed to ignore the whole matter, then she would feel relieved, she knew.

But Condy did not call, and for three or four days she heard nothing at all from him. The fact that this silence filled her with worry. Peggy all the proof she needed that she cared very much for his good opinion. As day followed day, she told herself time and again that he was tired of the whole affair, and that he had decided to drop out.

Although eager to see him or hear from him, Peggy did not consider once the possibility of adopting some subterfuge to get into touch with him. She did not for example, harbor any idea of phoning him to ask if he had carried away her gloves by forgetting to take them from his pocket. Such ruses have often done service, and the temptation to try them is often hard to resist.

From Peggy's mournful expression, her mother divined that something was wrong, but she concluded to do as she pleased. She knew that Peggy would feel reticent about talking, and that if the trouble were really serious, Peggy would come to her unasked. When she found Peggy all alone in a big chair one morning, wiping tears from her eyes and trying to control a trembling under lip, she could hardly deny the mother love that prompted inquiries, but she decided to wait.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—You'd Feel the Same Way if You Were Father—

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The Last Shot

By FREDERICK PALMER

Why Do You Want to Save the Women?

The major surgeon in charge, surprised to find any woman in the vicinity, was about to tell her so automatically, then, in view of her intensity, he waited for her to speak.

"You will let us do something for them?" Marta asked. "We will make them some hot soup."

He was immediately businesslike. No less than Dellarme or Fracasse or Lanstron or Westering, he had been preparing throughout his professional career for this hour. The detail of caring for the men who were down had been worked out no less systematically than that of wounding them.

"Thank you, no! We don't want to waste time," he replied. "We must get them away with all speed so that the ambulances may return promptly."

It's only a fifteen-minute run to the hospital, where every comfort and appliance are ready and where they will be given the right things to eat."

"Then we will give them some wine!" Marta persisted.

"Not if we can prevent it! Not to start hemorrhages! The field doctors have brandy for use when advisable, and there is brandy in all the ambulances."

Clearly, volunteer service was not wanted. There was no room at the immediate front for Florence Nightingales in the modern machine of war.

"Then water?"

The major surgeon aimed to be patient to an earnest, attractive young woman.

"We have sterilized water—we have everything," he explained. "If we hadn't at this early stage I ought to be serving an apprenticeship in a village apothecary shop. Anything that means confusion, delay, unnecessary excitement is bad and unmerciful."

Marta was not yet at the end of her resources. The recollection of the dying private who had asked her mother for a rose in the last war flashed into mind.

"You haven't any flowers! They won't do any harm, even if they aren't sterilized. The wounded like flowers, don't they? Don't you like flowers? Look! We've millions!"

"Yes, I do. They do. A good idea. Bring all the flowers you want to."

The major surgeon's smile to Marta was not altogether on account of her suggestion. "It ought to help anybody who was ever wounded anywhere in the world to have you give him a flower!" he was thinking.

She ran for an armful of blossoms and was back before the arrival of the first wounded man who preceded the stretchers on foot. He was holding up a hand bound in a white first-aid bandage which had a red spot in the center. Those hit in hand or arm, if the surgeon's glance justified it, were sent on up the road to a point a mile distant, where transportation in requisitioned vehicles was provided. These men were triumphant in their cheerfulness. They were alive; they had done their duty, and they had the proof of it in the coming souvenirs of scars.

Some of the forms on stretchers had peaceful faces in unconsciousness of their condition. Others had a look of wonder, of pain, of apprehension in their consciousness that death might be near. The single word "Shrapnel!" by a hospital-corps corporal told the story of crushed or lacerated features, in explanation of a white cloth covering a head with body uninjured.

Many of the wounded looked at the telephone bell jingled merrily in the officer's room at Central station the other night, and a female voice replied to a corporal's "hello!"

"Is dis der poles station?"

"Yes, madam."

"I want you to find my poor Jackie and send him home."

"What has Jackie done?"

"Nuddings. But he won't stay home at nights. He just runs around and runs around. And sometimes he don't get home till nearly 10 o'clock."

"How old is Jackie?"

"He vuz thirty-two his last birthday."

"Madam," gently replied the officer, "you had better let Jackie alone. He probably has got a girl."

Marta even more than the flowers. It was good to see the face of a woman, her eyes limpid with sympathy, and it was not what she said but the way she spoke that brought smiles in response to hers. For she was no solemn ministering angel, but high-spirited, cheery, of the sort that the major surgeon would have chosen to distribute flowers to the men. Every remark of the victim of war made its distinct and indelible impression on the gelatin of his mind.

"I like my blue aster better than that yellow weed of yours, Tom!"

"You didn't know Ed Schmidt got it? Yes, he was right next to me in the line."

"Say, did you notice Dellarme's smile? It was wonderful."

"And old Bert Stranaky! I heard him whistling the wedding march as he fired."

"Miss, I'll keep this flower forever!"

"They say Billy Lister will live—his cheek was shot away!"

"Once we got going I didn't mind. It seemed like as if I'd been fighting for years!"

"Hole no bigger than a lead-pencil. I'll be back in a week!"

"Yes; don't these little bullets make neat little holes?"

"We certainly gave them a surprise when they came up the hill! I wonder if we missed the fellow that jumped into the shell crater!"

"Our company got it worst!"

"Not any worse than ours, I'll wager!"

"Oh—oh—can't you go easier? Oh—h—h—the groan ending in a clenching of the teeth."

"Hello, Jake! You here, too, and going in your automobile? And we've both got lower berths!"

"Sh—! That poor chap's dying!"

Worst of all to Marta was the case of a shrapnel fracture of the cranium, with the resulting delirium, in which the sufferer's incoherence included memories of childhood scenes, moments on the firing-line, calls for his mother, and prayers to be put out of misery. A prod of the hypodermic from the major surgeon, and "On the operating table in fifteen minutes" was the answer to Marta's question if the poor fellow would live.

Until dark, in groups, at intervals, and again singly, the wounded were coming in from a brigade front in the region where the rifles were crackling and the shrapnel clouds were hanging prettily over the hills; and stretchers were being slipped into place in the ambulances, while Marta kept at her post.

"We haven't had much more to do at this station," said the major surgeon, when a plodding section of infantry in retreat arrived.

Dinner Stories

One hot July afternoon Rastus Johnson, a gentleman of color, and his family of nine, who depended almost entirely on the town for their support, started away from home, all togged out in their best, each carrying a supply of eatables. One of their benefactors happened to meet them on the road.

"Well, Uncle Rastus, where are you going with all your family so dressed up?" he asked.

"Well, boss," said Sam, "doan you know the circus am come to town?"

"Yes, but I can't afford to take all my family."

"Well, I'll tell yer, boss, it's jes' dis way wid us. We done so'd hearin' stove cause de winter am fur off—but the circus am here!"

THE WORLD SET FREE

Europe's Armageddon and the Last War

By H. G. WELLS

Man, who is ceasing to be an agricultural animal, becomes more and more a builder, a traveler and a maker.

How much he ceases to be a cultivator of the soil the returns of the redistribution committee showed. Every year the work of our scientific laboratories increases the productivity and simplifies the labor of those who work upon the soil, and the food now of the whole world is produced by less than 1 per cent of its population, a percentage which still tends to decrease. Far fewer people are needed upon the land than training and proclivity dispose toward it, and as a consequence of this excess of human attention, the garden side of life, the creation of groves and lawns and vast regions of beautiful flowers, has expanded enormously and continues to expand, for as agricultural method intensifies and the quota is raised one farm association after another, availing itself of the 1875 regulations, elects to produce a public garden and pleasure in the place of its former fields, and the area of freedom and beauty is increased, and the chemists' triumphs of synthesis which could now give us an entirely artificial food render largely in abeyance because it is so much more pleasant and interesting to eat natural produce and to grow such things upon the soil. Each year adds to the variety of our fruits and the delightfulness of our flowers.

The early years of the world republic witnessed a certain recrudescence of political adventure. There was, it is rather curious to note, no revival of separatism after the face of King Ferdinand Charles had vanished from the sight of men, but in a number of countries, as the first urgent physical needs were met, there appeared a variety of personalities having this in common that they sought to revive political trouble and clamor by its aid to positions of importance and satisfaction. In no case did they speak in the name of kings, and it is clear that monarchy must have been far gone in obsolescence before the twentieth century began, but they made appeals to the large survivals of nationalists and racial feeling that were everywhere to be found, they alleged with considerable justice that the council was overriding racial and national customs and disregarding religious rules. The great plain of India was particularly prolific in such agitators. The revival of newspapers, which had largely ceased during the terrible year because of the dislocation of the coinage, gave a vehicle and a method of organization to these complaints. At first the council disregarded this developing opposition, and then it recognized it with an entirely devastating frankness.

But already by that time the work of the council was drawing to an end. It was concerned not so much for the continuation of its constructions as for the preservation of its accomplished work from the dramatic instincts of the politician.

The life of the race becomes indeed more and more independent of the formal government. The council in its opening phase was heroic in spirit. A dragon slaying body, it slashed out of existence a vast knotted tangle of obsolete ideas and clumsy and jealous proprietorships. It secured by a noble system of institutional precautions, freedom of inquiry, freedom of criticism, free communications, a common basis of education and understanding and freedom from economic oppression. With that its creative task was accomplished. It became more and more an established security and less and less an active intervention. There is nothing in our time to correspond with the continual petty making and entangling of laws in an atmosphere of contention that is perhaps the most perplexing aspect of constitutional history in the nineteenth century. In that age they seem to have been perpetually making laws when we should alter regulations. The work of change which we delegate to these scientific committees of specific general direction which have the special knowledge needed, and which are themselves dominated by the broad intellectual process of the community, was in those days inextricably mixed up with legislation. They fought over the details. We should as soon think of fighting over the arrangement of the parts of a machine. We know nowadays that such things go on best within laws, as life goes on between earth and sky. And so it is that government gathers now for a day or so in each year under the sunshine of Brissago when St. Bruno's hills are in flower and does little more than bless the work of its committees. And even these committees are less originative and more expressive of the general thought than they were at first. It becomes difficult to mark out the particular directive personalities of the world. Continually we are less personal. Every good thought contributes now, and every able brain falls within that informal and dispersed kingship which gathers together into one purpose the energies of the race.

was given a vote, and the world was divided into ten constituencies, which voted on the same day by means of a simple modification of the world post. Membership of the government, it was decided, must be for life, save in the exceptional case of a recall, but the elections, which were held quinquennially, were arranged to add fifty members on each occasion. The method of proportional representation with one transferable vote was adopted, and the voter might also write upon his voting paper in a specially marked space the name of any of his representatives that he wished to recall. A ruler was recallable by as many votes as the quota by which he had been elected and the original members by as many votes in any constituency as the returning quotas in the first election.

Upon these conditions the council submitted itself very cheerfully to the suffrages of the world. None of its members was recalled, and its fifty new associates, which included twenty-seven which it had seen fit to recommend, were of an altogether too miscellaneous quality to disturb the broad trend of its policy. Its freedom from rules or formalities prevented any obstructive proceedings, and when one of the two newly arrived home rulers members for India sought for information how to bring in a bill they learned simply that bills were not brought in. They asked for the speaker and were privileged to hear much ripe wisdom from the ex-king Egbert, who was now consciously among the seniors of the gathering. Thereafter they were baffled men.

But already by that time the work of the council was drawing to an end. It was concerned not so much for the continuation of its constructions as for the preservation of its accomplished work from the dramatic instincts of the politician.

The life of the race becomes indeed more and more independent of the formal government. The council in its opening phase was heroic in spirit. WEST TELLS OF TRIP TO ELKHORN FAIR

High School Agricultural Instructor and Class of Twenty Enjoyed the Day.

On Thursday last twenty of the boys taking the agricultural course at the Janesville high school, accompanied by the undersigned, spent the day at the Elkhorn county fair at Elkhorn. While there these boys saw a great many things illustrative of the subjects which they are taking up in their course.

The managers generously admitted the boys for 15 cents apiece and it is quite certain that the boys got a great amount of pleasure and instruction for their 15 cents. The first to attract their attention were the cattle barns, located near the gate, where the stock was outside being judged, they went to find what there was to be learned by watching Prof. G. C. Humphrey of the state university judge the cattle. There were there a great many things illustrative of the subjects which they are taking up in their course. The cattle belonging to a certain class were brought out and only with his eyes but with his hands as well. After this they were arranged in a group according to their quality. The first prize animal heading the group, the other animals in order of their excellence as prize winners. When they were so ranked the judge addressed the spectators, explaining the ranking and pointing out the excellent features of the prize winners—the bright eyes, clear head and limbs denoting quality; the large milk veins and udder denoting production; the deep chest and well sprung ribs showing strong constitution, and so on, calling attention also to the characteristics of the different breeds. Going down the list the judge pointed out the defects and showed the reasons why the other animals failed to get higher ranking. This all proved so interesting that some of the class spent the entire forenoon watching the judging of the cattle.

One class has been studying horses during this term and they found much to interest them in this line at the fair grounds. The different breeds of horses, and often the names of the individual horses, were indicated by the labels on their stalls. The breeders' names also being given. They found that Rock county had its share of prize winners.

The judging of the horses was as interesting as that of the cattle and was conducted in much the same way, excepting that the horses were put "through their paces" and were walked and trotted about the ring, showing them in action. One mare was shown, 25 years old, the mother of nineteen colts, with one of her colts and the pedigree papers of both.

There were exhibits of Arabians, English Shires, Clydesdales and Belgians, and the American bred trotters and pacers. There were also Shetland ponies, which were popular with the younger children on the grounds.

At 3 o'clock some of the party were interested spectators of the hog cholera demonstration, given by Dr. Faunce of the U. S. bureau of agriculture. After a few remarks by Dr. Faunce on the nature and cause of the disease a small hog was brought in and the doctor proceeded to inject the proper amount of serum to render the hog temporarily immune. He then showed how the hog could be made permanently immune by the injection of serum and the virus, or, in other words, by injecting at the same time the remedy used and the germs of the disease.

Dr. Faunce also called attention to charts, showing the good results obtained from using serum alone, and the Serum Simultaneous Method. He exhibited other charts showing how the disease is carried from one herd to another, doves, cats, dogs, even men, being carriers of the disease from sick herds, with disastrous results. Dr. Faunce gave opportunity for questions and those in attendance at the demonstration manifested deep interest in the subject by the questions asked.

One could not but note, however, that in spite of the devastation caused in southern Wisconsin by this disease there were not more than a score or so of farmers present at this demonstration. It is probable that it was not because the farmers are not interested in the hog cholera, but that they are more interested in horse racing, for the races were then in progress and were watched by thousands of people.

The boys watched the racing, too, at intervals, and like others, enjoyed seeing the horses in action. Farm machinery also claimed attention. One of the fascinations of the fair at the present time is the manipulation of the different kinds of machines needed in its processes, and the boys spent some time with engines and hay loaders and manure spreaders and carriers, etc. Most of them had time also for visits to the horticultural and grain departments.

Of the numerous side shows that thronged the " midway " of the fair the only ones attracting the agricultural boys sufficiently to induce of them to go inside were the "Largest Steer in the World," and the Miniature Farm in Action.

When the special train reached Janesville from the fair two hours late, though it was long past the supper hour, the boys felt that the day at Elkhorn fair had been both instructive and entertaining.

TARIFF AND SUGAR BY WINFIELD JONES

Correspondent Says People of United States Are Burdened With $240,000 Annually As Result of Measure.

(By Winfield Jones.)

Washington, D. C. Sept. 29.—The free-trade tariff policy of President Wilson and the democratic majority in congress has resulted in putting a burden of $240,000 annually on the people of this country. In one item alone—sugar, said Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, in the senate the other day.

"Last year the democratic party enacted a law reducing our import duties. Let us buy in the cheapest markets in the world was their slogan. They predicted unprecedented prosperity and a general reduction in the highest cost of living. This country through the passage of the Underwood bill. The democratic majority in congress singled out sugar as the one foot to reduce the high cost of living.

The democratic tariff has greatly curtailed the production of American sugar.

"Think of the great financial burden which the American people are bearing today because we are not producing at home this great food necessity, which we easily can produce under a safe and sane fiscal policy. Our sugar is imported from Europe, the whole sale price of sugar in the world has increased at least 3 cents per pound since the 1st of August. Our annual consumption of 4,000,000 tons this means an increased burden on the American people of $240,000,000.

How long the present European conflict will continue it is impossible to predict, but even though peace be brought about within the next two months, the present high price of sugar undoubtedly will continue to prevail for at least another year, and the enormous sum of $480,000,000 will be added to the sugar bill of the American consumer.

Regardless of what other things the European war teaches, one thing stands out which it might be well for free-traders to ponder over, and that is, thanks to the policy of protection which has endured a sufficient number of years in the United States to give us a number of our important industries, we are in a way independent except for sugar and a few other things of the warring nations on the other side. Fortunately for us the war came before the Underwood tariff had time to actually put many American industries out of business.

The war shows up the weak spots in the favorite argument of the free-traders; that what we can not produce elsewhere (plus transportation, we take it also) would be better passed up while we turn our attention to other things. Due to the high wage scale in the United States there are any number of things that can be produced more cheaply in Europe and in the tropics than here, and if the whole world were run for the benefit of mankind, and all state and national boundaries were swept away, maybe a plan whereby different products were allotted to different parts of the world might be made to work out. But one thing is certain and that is it certainly works out better to be a producer of the necessities of life than an importer, except possible in the case of a small island like England, entirely surrounded by battle ships and with an auxiliary supply of dreadnoughts forming an uninterrupted right of way to the food supply.

In times of peace it is possible to find a food and clothing supply outside a country's own borders—providing of course the money can first be found to pay for it—but in war times a suit of clothes or a pound of sugar at home looks bigger than a whole clothing store or a complete modern up-to-date foreign sugar factory.

There is a lesson in the big war, but will it sink in? When considering any new policy, or reconsidering some of the old ones, the Wilson administration might take into consideration such incidents as war plagues. A country like the United States that expects to remain neutral and provide the necessary food and clothing for its people, while the rest of the so-called civilized world is doing a war dance, would better encourage a country's own borders—providing of course the money can first be found to pay for it—but in war times a suit of clothes or a pound of sugar at home looks bigger than a whole clothing store or a complete modern up-to-date foreign sugar factory.

There is a lesson in the big war, but will it sink in? When considering any new policy, or reconsidering some of the old ones, the Wilson administration might take into consideration such incidents as war plagues. A country like the United States that expects to remain neutral and provide the necessary food and clothing for its people, while the rest of the so-called civilized world is doing a war dance, would better encourage a country's own borders—providing of course the money can first be found to pay for it—but in war times a suit of clothes or a pound of sugar at home looks bigger than a whole clothing store or a complete modern up-to-date foreign sugar factory.

LIBRARY PETITIONS COUNCIL FOR $5,000

Requests for Annual Appropriations Will Be Received by Council for Budget Levy.

The first petition for the annual budget to be appropriated by the city, the first week in October was received, this morning by City Clerk Hammarlund from Judge Charles L. Fifield, chairman of the library board. Other departments are expected to present their petitions before the last of the week.

The petition received this morning recommends an appropriation of five thousand dollars for the city library. The annual report as required by the state library commission from July 1, 1913 to the same date this year, was also included in the request. The report states that expenditures had cost also included with the request. The expenses required in the five thousand dollar appropriation were listed as being: Salaries, $1,200; janitor, $600; fuel, $250; light, $320; books, $900; periodicals, $180; binding, $250; insurance, $100; printing, $20; supplies, $82; miscellaneous, $44; repairs, $225; telephone, $24. The total amount was $5,025.

The report of Miss Gertrude Cobb, librarian, stated that the library had been open 306 days during the time named. A total of 54,043 books had been circulated which with the school circulation of 7,021, made a grand total of 61,064 volumes, an increase of 297 books over last year. More non-fiction books were being used by the patrons which was declared encouraging. In the adult department twenty-eight per cent of the volumes circulated were non-fiction books.

The rent collection report showed that 110 volumes had been added to the library from this source, leaving forty-six books for this collection. The receipts were listed as being $133.58 and expenditures amounted to $131.99. The more generous appropriation last year allowed for an increasing number of books which were added to the library. A total of 840 volumes were added by purchase, 63 by gifting and 140 by exchange from the rent collection, 286 by gifts including state and national documents, a grand total of 1,228 volumes.

The total number of books at present in the library was given as being 18,842, as there had been 1,238 books withdrawn and 29 were missing. An increase in the number of patrons shown in that 1,214 new borrowers were registered, leaving a balance of 5,070 cardholders, more than a third of the city's population.

The work during the past year was declared very satisfactory in all departments, mention being made in the success in aiding the schools, various societies and in reference work.

Back to the Land.

In New York certain persons who have purchased 1,000 acres of land in New Jersey, have formed the "American Agricultural association," to encourage and produce a "back to the land" movement. The 1,000 acres will be subdivided into five-acre parcels, on each of which will be built a house and a barn and on which a well will be bored. These little ready-made farms will then be sold practically at cost. Purchasers will be urged to enter truck and chicken farming to supply the New York market. Fine idea, isn't it? But does it take account of all the needs? That is, has it been demonstrated that the five-acre farm can in the majority of cases be made to pay? Or is the unit of land too small by 50 per cent? And does the farmer need some practical experience or can he just jump in and win right off the bat, so to say?

Unfortunate.

"Don't you feel better since you gave up smoking?" "No. I'm bothered to death trying to find out what has become of all that money I was going to save."

On The Spur of The Moment

Impossible. Columbus was a hardy soul. A great hand to explore. He loved to ramble and to roam. Upon a foreign shore. He claimed that there was nothing on this earth he couldn't find. And never missed a single thing. He had made up his mind. He stood an egg upon its end. To prove the world was round; The wise men laughed and claimed that he was mentally unsound. He claimed he would discover New land beyond the sea, By sailing westward straight away. As sure as sure could be. That he would undertake. He was a great discoverer, And that is no mistake. His reputation was immense, But there's one thing he couldn't find. If he should try right now. His compass would be useless and. His egg trick quite passe, If to discover he should try. One certain thing today. His record would go glimmering. He'd lose his great renown, If he did but start out to find. A cheap steak in our town.

Signs of the Times. If congressmen are docked, when not present at sessions of the house, many of them will have to go to work at something else in order to make a living. The American stage is declared officially to be 162 years old, but there are certainly some chorus girls and Little Evvas who are older than that. Czarnia and Villa are at peace, but in these strenuous times a little peace here and there is hardly noticed. A lot of malefactors may be very thankful that President Wilson has decided not to take the stamp this fall. Long absence from the public prints must have borne heavily upon the mind of Harry K. Thaw. It is hoped that somebody will capture the Bug river in Austria and change its name. War tax on automobiles at this time would certainly take the joy out of joyride.

The hillside may be dew-pearled, as Mr. Browning assured us, and the snail may be on the thorn, and morning may be at seven, but there's a fly in the ointment. Get up, Johnny, gotta go to school this morning. Scientists claim to have shot a spectacled duck in the Yukon country. Huh! There are a lot of spectacled ducks on the college faculties right here at home. If the government wants a large war tax, why not levy it on the Castles and other dancing instructors, who are making all the money nowadays?

Naval mine in Gulf of Finland was exploded by a whale and the whale was killed. Nobody's neutrality seems to be respected nowadays.

A Detroit man broke into jail and refused to leave. The cost of living in jail is nothing like what it is outside.

Up to the hour of going to press, Patagonia has not become embroiled in the war and Swat was still neutral.

Even if American women are obliged to wear American fashions, they will be worth looking at.

Uncle Ezra Harkins is startin' to let his whiskers grow, which is a

Mrs. Anse Judson says she is sure if all the women in this country would go bareheaded business conditions would be a good deal better.

His Revenge. "Let me take that wretched thing home," said the patient, as the dentist relieved him of his aching molar. "I want to take it home and poke sugar in it and see it ache."
